A TRIP TO THE SOUTHLAND.

The Workings of the Wonderful Locks in the Panama Canal Minutely Described.

BY DR. H. F. BITNER

PART II

IN THE CANAL ZONE.

Wednesday morning, April 21st, we arrived at Colon. An early breakfast was served so that we left the ship at 7 a. m., after having passed the medical inspection. In a party of four we hired an automobile to take us to Gatun. A good road leading around hills and knolls covered with the rankest vegetation, brought us to the great dam and the locks at Gatun. The dam crosses the Chagres river, from a hill on one side of the river to the Canal locks on the other side. It is one hundred and five feet high, one and a half miles long, a half mile thick at its base; 300 feet thick at the water line and 100 feet thick at the crest. It took 22,000,000 cubic yards of material to make this dam The spillway, or place where the surplus water runs over the dam, presented, when we were there, a magnificent sight. A second Niagara Falls was at once suggested. An immense volume of water tumbled down upon the solid concrete base and sent the spray flying in all directions. The Chagres river is not a small stream but a large river. A large power house is situated at the base of the spillway, and part of the water is used to generate electricity to work the engines and lock apparatus, as well as for light and other purposes. This dam across the river forms a lake which is more than 32 miles long and covers an area of 164 square miles.

A soldier of the U. S. Army accompanied us as our guide and explained how the dam was made and gave us the facts stated above. We were fortunate in reaching the locks just when we did, for a large ship was just entering the lower lock We saw the huge gates, each weighing over 500 tons, open noiselessly and without any visible connection with any opening machinery. Then four electric engines, two in front and two behind the entering ship pulled the ship into the first lock. The gates behind the ship were then closed and a number of places in the bottom of the lock seemed to open to let the water into the lock. I counted six such places, three on each side; they seemed to be round and about ten feet in diameter. There may have been more, it was raining at the time and we could not see distinctly to any distance. The two engines that were fastened by heavy cables to the rear of the ship stopped the ship when it was in the lock and prevented it from injuring the gates. The water soon filled the lock and raised the boat to the level of the water in the next lock. The next gates were then opened and the ship towed into the second lock. The three locks at Gatun raised the ship 85 feet above sea level and it can then sail thru the lake for 32 miles to the first lock on the Pacific side. The channel through the lake is indicated by buoy carrying a lantern on one side and a white post on the other. The ship sails thru between these two guides, the lantern shines upon the white post and makes it visible. We tried to get passage on a ship going through the canal, but were unable to do so. Nothing but freight ships passed through during the two days we were there. The gates are so massive and the number of men and engines used so many that no small boats can go through by themselves. The fare is $1.20 per ton. If the ship we came on to Colon had passed through it would have cost over $4000. Small boats that want to go through wait at the entrance until a large boat enters, or there are enough small boats to make it worth while to open for them. The locks are large enough to accommodate several boats at the same time. All the gates are double, so that if one set breaks down or is out of order the other can be used.

After seeing Gatun we took the Panama railroad, now owned and operated by Uncle Sam, and continued our journey along the canal to Panama, on the Pacific side of the Isthmus. We stopped at a number of places but did not leave the observation car of the train. Most of the way the railroad runs parallel to the canal, but at the Culebra cut it turns to the left and after passing along and between low mountains it enters a tunnel at Goldhil and emerges not far from the locks on the Pacific side.

Millions Will Have Rural Mail Service.

Albert S. Burleson, postmaster general, has announced that more than one million more persons will get rural mail service before July 1 through extensions of routes without extra cost to the government. This will be accomplished through the elimination of duplications and unnecessary service.

After July 1, by the motor vehicle service authorized by the last congress, rural mail facilities will be extended to many additional persons.

WHAT CONSERVATION MEANS.

Forester Ludwig of Boalsburg Takes Exception to Article Concerning Denudation of State Forest Lands.

The following letter was received at this office and was written by Forester Walter D. Ludwig of Boalsburg, in which he takes exceptions to an article printed in these columns April 29th, concerning the cutting of timber by the state off mountain lands which were taken over by the state for the purpose of reforestration. The letter is so complete in itself that no further comment is necessary.

The Editor,
The Centre Reporter,
Centre Hall, Pa.

Dear Sir:—

In last week's issue of your paper there appeared an article entitled "Denuding State Lands" to the effect that the State Forestry Department is being criticised for cutting timber from the State forests and that when these lands were purchased it was generally understood that the State intended to reforest the hill and mountain sides, etc.

Any criticism directed at the State Forestry Department for the cutting of timber from the State Forests is made without a true knowledge of forestry practice and what conservation means. Conservation of our natural resources means not the absolute non-use of such resources but the wise use of the same; and forestry is one branch of conservation. Scientific forestry means the continual production of a crop of trees on land which is not suitable for agriculture or grazing and is a business and must be conducted the same as any other business. The forests must be put in such condition that a perpetual crop of trees will be produced. As a merchant or other business man aims to dispose of his undesirable stock, so must the forester dispose of those trees which are a detriment to the other trees. As the farmer cuts and harvests his grain when ripe, so must the forester harvest his crop of trees when mature so that he can produce another crop. If the farmer allows his ripe grain to stand too long in the field, it will decay and be worthless. Trees grow, reach maturity and die and unless they are cut when ripe become worthless for any purpose. Generally trees should be cut when they have reached that point where they no longer return a reasonable rate of interest on the investment. Is that not purely a business proposition? Who would continue to hold a $100 bond which had matured and no longer bore any interest? In Continental Europe where forestry has reached its highest development an acre of State forest yields from $3 to $10 net annually. Think of it. These countries have been practising scientific forestry for hundreds of years and they regulate the forests so that a crop of trees is produced and cut each year.

Your article says further that it was generally understood that the State purchased these mountain lands to reforest them. Very true and how can this best be done? By allowing the trees to stand until they fall down from decay or die in their struggle among each other for light and moisture? Certainly not. Or by cutting such trees as have matured or are so close and crowded together as to interfere with the growth and development of all? Assuredly yes. As the farmer thins out the beets, spinach and other garden vegetables to increase the growth of the remainder, so must the forester thin out the trees so as to give the young growth a chance Will such cutting denude the State or other lands? Until forestry principles were put in practise it was the general rule for lumbermen to remove everything, young and old, leaving nothing to reforest the land. The forester requires that some trees be left standing, generally those trees under a certain diameter as eight or ten inches, so that these trees will grow and furnish a new crop to be harvested.

There can be no practical forestry without regulated cutting of the trees. In time and under forest management our State forests will be made to yield a net return per acre each year without reducing or impairing the forest growth. This is the end for which the Department of Forestry is striving and no one need be alarmed that "there will be little left after the State's woodsmen leave the forests."

Very truly yours,
WALTER D. LUDWIG, Forester.

Mother's Day.

On Sunday evening Rev. R. R Jones in the Reformed church delivered a sermon appropriate to the day—Mother's Day. The music was also of a character especially fitted to the occasion, and was furnished mainly by the junior element. The opening was a quartette by Misses Verna and Ethel Rowe, Lena Emerick and Rebecca Kreamer. A tenor and alto duet and chorus by Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Kreamer, Mrs. John H. Puff and William Boozer, with Miss Rebecca Kreamer as accompanist, was later rendered as was also a chorus. Each number was greatly enjoyed and was the cause of favorable comment.

In his sermon Rev. Jones accomplished his aim to elevate motherhood. He called attention to the general rising level of woman, and gave her first place in Christendom. He regretted the attempt of the florists to commercialize the day, and made it plain that one's mother could be honored without a hot-house bouquet on the lapel.

Reformeds to Have Pipe Organ.

A pipe organ will be installed in Trinity Reformed church, Centre Hall, as soon as the congregation decides on the make of instrument desired.

The thought of possessing a pipe organ has long been cherished by the Reformed congregation but the securing of sufficient funds stood in the way. A communication to Andrew Carnegie, however, resulted in receiving notice that the philanthropic Scotchman would be ready to donate $750 provided the congregation would contribute an equal amount. At the meeting on Friday evening it was found that sufficient money had been pledged to make the purchase of a pipe organ a possibility.

The Reformed church is also considering installing electric lights and with the addition of these two improvements this church will be one of the finest to be found any where in a town of equal size.

Centre County Picnic at Philadelphia.

The directors of the Centre County Association of Philadelphia held a meeting May 3rd and decided to hold the next annual picnic on the third Saturday of June, (June 19th).

A committee consisting of Ira D. Garman, Hon. Chas. R. Kurtz, Dr. S. Gray Mattern and Dr. John C. C. Beale, met the Philadelphia City Council Committee and made a plea to have the Liberty Bell stop at Bellefonte on its trip to the Pacific Coast in July and during the Home Week celebration.

Country Club Knocks Out Booze.

The Board of Governors of the Clinton Country Club at a meeting last week voted to so amend the by-laws as to do away hereafter with the serving of intoxicating liquors at the Club. Although in the past beer only was served and comparatively little drinking was done, the action taken places the club for good and all on the "dry" list.

The sentiment of the stockholders as to their wishes in the matter had been sounded, and these returns showed an overwhelming desire for the abolishment of the sideboard. All those who favored making the club dry made known their views, while in a great many cases the known-to-be "wets" failed to evince enough interest to respond for or against it.

Examination for McAllister Scholarship.

The examination for the McAllister freshman scholarship in the Pennsylvania State College will be given, for Centre county, at the College, under the direction of the faculty, June 10 and 11 The examination is open to both sexes and, as heretofore, will comprise English grammar and composition, American history, algebra and plane geometry.

Discovered Speakeasy.

The State College Times says it is in possession of evidence, that were it placed before the district attorney or government officials, would send the party to the penitentiary for a term of years. This party has been running a speakeasy for some time in town and has been furnishing liquor to young men as well as regular boozers.

Mifflinburg is considering the matter of building an additional reservoir, to cost between $5,000 and $6,000.

BOALSBURG HIGH SCHOOL.

Holds Graduating Exercises Wednesday Evening for Class of Three.

In no rural section does a better educational sentiment exist than in Harris township, with Boalsburg as the educational centre. The school board in this township has long had representative citizens on it whose chief qualification for that particular office was their belief in education, at the same time standing guard over the financial interests of all concerned—yet at no time in the recent past has dollars been the ruling factor. It is surprising that with a small millage Harris township has been able to conduct a Township High School with a three year course, together with all mixed schools throughout the district.

On Wednesday evening of last week was the occasion of the graduating exercises of the Senior Class of Harris township's pride—the Boalsburg High School. The class consisted of three ladies—Misses Ida Segner, Rebekah Wieland, and Edwina Wieland, all of whom acquitted themselves in such fine style that not only their audience applauded them most heartily, but the commencement speaker was obliged to speak of their manner and performance in a way that meant to his hearers much more than the compliments due graduates on such occasions, regardless of their successes.

In this account will be found the names of the members of the Senior and Junior classes, numbering eleven and ten, respectively. The youths made a fine appearance, and gave a guarantee of the maintaining of the present high standing of the school In this connection the effective work of the teachers in the Grammar and Intermediate grades must not be overlooked, for it is the good foundation laid by them, Edward Williams and Miss Olive Way, that the High School work is built.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

Ernest Hess, President
George Forney, Secretary
Jacob Meyer
Frank E. Wieland
William Raymond.

The school board will elect teachers at a meeting about the first of June. The many expressions of appreciation of Miss Gobeen's work impels the writer to predict that she will be retained in her present position.

The exercises were held in the Reformed church, which was brilliantly lighted with electricity produced by a stream of water having its source back of Tussey Mountain and harnessed within the limits of Boalsburg. The large auditorium was filled, and at the appointed time the local orchestra struck up a march to which the principals stepped up the aisle and to the platform. The procession was led by the under classes, who on reaching the front of the auditorium separated and permitted the Principal, Miss Gobeen, and the members of the graduating class to pass between them to the stage. Following them came Rev. C. S. Stover, and Prof. J. T. Marshman, the commencement speaker, who also took seats on the rostrum, and then came the members of the school board, who were seated to the left, and the under classes filed into seats to their rear.

The invocation by the pastor of the congregation whose church was occupied was followed by a selection by the orchestra, and then Miss Ida Segner delivered the salutatory.

After welcoming her auditors, Miss Ida Segner proceeded with her oration on the "Sign of the Red Cross," which she defined as "the people's help for suffering through military necessities."

In deference to Switzerland, whose people were instrumental in organizing the society, the Red Cross was made the reverse of the flag of that country—a flag of red field and white cross. It was Clara Barton who was the first American interested in the Red Cross, and this in 1869, while in Geneva, sixty years after the treaty had been signed by the leading nations of Europe. Beginning in 1877, Miss Barton put forth every effort at the National Capital with the result that President Garfield recommended the Red Cross in his first message to Congress. In 1882 President Arthur carried out the wishes of the martyred president, when the Geneve treaty was signed.

The Red Cross society aims to eliminate needless cruelty and old time barbarity, and to render neutral and exempt from capture all disabled soldiers. Among the wounded it recognizes no difference of nations or cause, but only the fact that they are human and in trouble.

"The Modern Girl" was the subject developed by Miss Rebekah Wieland. To her the modern girl was not the woman who watched the animal skins piled up in the corner while her lord hunted; nor she who lived in flower strewn apartments and was sung to by knights; nor she who, in time of Lewis XIV, was elaborately gowned, and danced and sang, and coquetted as pretty brainless dolls—the toys of a pleasure loving generation, but the girl who stands on the hill top of opportunity, fearless, confident, self-assured. The modern girl is taking her place today in the fields of literature and art, of music and sculpture, and the world has conquered its prejudices just about enough to recognize its woman genius without a visible and uncomplimentary surprise"

The speaker was careful to emphasize the fact that "achievements have not taken from her (the modern girl) her womanliness, but that she remains tender and sweet."

Miss Wieland predicted that if the woman of today exercises a proper influence over the next generation, the question of equal suffrage will be solved.

How nigh is grandeur to our dust,
How near is God to man;
When duty whispers low, "thou must"
The youth replies, I can."

These lines by Emerson placed over Rugby School, England, and quoted by Miss Edwina Wieland in her oration on "Dreams Worth While," conveys the general line of thought expressed by her. As examples of raising from the lower to higher levels Arkwight (a miner) founder of the great manufacturing industry of England; Isaac Newton (the son of a poor man) a sun in the heavens of science; Ben Johnson (a brick layer) one of the most illustrious men of English literature; Hobson (a tailor) the brave admiral, and others were named. She implored her associates that their dreams be of "some service to our race, our people, our Nation and our God," so that "we shall live in the hearts we leave behind."

On closing her oration, Miss Wieland spoke words of gratitude in turn to the citizens, the school board, the principal, and to the under classes, and class mates encouragement. The high esteem in which the principal is held by pupils and patrons is well expressed in the reference made to her when these words were spoken:

"To you has been given the task of impressing directly upon our minds those truths which will develop the best of each nature and of implanting in each brain and heart the germ of knowledge, whose perfect growth shall form lives of success. How well you have discharged this duty the present but faintly shows. We tremble as we leave you, for we will be alone. Here we have relied upon your wisdom, your guidance, here we have sought counsel from you who have ever been so able and so willing to bestow it.

"In saying farewell we are only expressing the wish that you may fare well in the good and great work you are doing. We thank you who have helped us climb this high up the rugged hill of knowledge, and in all the mazes of the future in all that awaits you in the life to come, we bid you Godspeed."

New Bottling Works in Operation.

F. J. McClellan, the local summer drink manufacturer, delivered his first consignment of soft drinks to the trade last week. The Penn Carbonating works promises to develop into a thriving business under the management of Mr. McClellan and his product will bring trade solely on its merits and many dealers have already promised to give all future trade to Mr. McClellan after becoming satisfied of the superior quality of the goods. The pure mountain water, which is the basis of the product, cannot be excelled anywhere and this will prove a strong selling point in establishing a trade. The clean surroundings necessary for such a business are not missing in Mr. McClellan's new plant, which, together with entire new machinery and ability in the manufacturing line will result in the production of a soft drink second to none. Success to him.

Will Hold Court in Church.

The June term of Snyder county court will very likely be held in one of the local churches as extensive repairs about to be made upon the county court house will make the structure unavailable for use during the greater part of the spring and summer. Final approval has been given to the project of court house remodeling at an approximate cost of $18,000. The Central hotel has been rented by the county commissioners to provide quarters for the court house officers during the period of renovation.

Included in the specifications are a new front to the building, an extension to the rear, fire proof vaults and steel filing cases and alterations to the floor of the court room. More commodious quarters will thus be provided for the grand and petit juries and the attorneys.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

Miss Mae Musser is the new clerk in the Millheim postoffice, succeeding Guy Swanger, resigned.

The Bellefonte Central railroad is running a gasoline car to Pine Grove Mills every day during the week.

School days are over and we may soon expect to see the barefoot boy wending his way to the old swimmin' hole.

One good thing in the large sales of automobiles locally, cash is being paid for them. That much cannot be said in all communities.

The home of J. L. Runkle, the plumber, in Bellefonte, is under quarantine owing to scarlet fever with which their son, Andrew, is suffering.

Preliminary work on the road near Pine Hall is being done by supervisor T. A. Decker. State road construction was stopped there some time ago by Bigelow.

E. S. Royer of Altoona is at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Shirk, where he will remain until such a time that he will recover his somewhat shattered health.

Another lot of twenty prisoners were brought from the western penitentiary at Pittsburgh to Rockview, last week, and will be used in the construction work of the new pen and in tilling the penitentiary farms.

John G. Dauberman purchased a Ford runabout car last week and will cause the new machine to serve a utilitarian purpose by having a truck bed affixed which will serve in the conveying of calves to the slaughter house.

Mrs. Margaret Hartswick of State College, mother of Adam and Newton Hartswick, was stricken with paralysis last week, the right side of her body and the left side of her face being affected. Her condition is rather critical, says the Times.

A counterfeit five-dollar bill is being circulated widely in this part of the state, of the Indian head design. It may be distinguished by a black and white mark over the Indian's ear. The reverse side has a design of 7¼ inches long, while the genuine bill is 6¼ inches long.

Rev. S. A. Snyder, who was moved by the Evangelical Conference from this place to Middleburg, preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the high school at that place, Sunday a week ago. "The sermon was a masterpiece," says the Snyder County News.

It now appears that Coble, Pleasant Gap's absconding postmaster, was not captured after all, as was reported, even though a Pleasant Gap young man was subpoenaed to appear in the United States district court at Sunbury, last week, where an indictment was to have been read to the fugitive.

E. S. Ripka, accompanied by his father, A. C. Ripka, made his first shoe-business trip in his car Wednesday and Thursday of last week, when he worked the Lock Haven district. Mr. Ripka is one of Hamilton Brown's star salesmen and since he has adopted the latest mode of travel will be able to cover his territory in a shorter time, which means more time for him with his family here.

G. E. Harter, while engaged in working corn ground for G. E. Homan, on the latter's farm near Millheim, met with an accident which might have proven more serious than it did. In unhitching the team at the noon hour he rode one of the animals and while descending a steep hill in the field the other animal fell, causing its mate to do likewise. Naturally, Mr. Harter was thrown to the ground and he fell in such a manner that his head became wedged under the horse's body. While in this precarious position he displayed good judgment in handling the team and escaped with a few bruises.

John Keene arrived in Centre Hall Thursday afternoon from Edwardsburg, Michigan, and at the present time is at the home of his sister, Mrs. John H. Horner, near Tusseyville. It is just twenty-three years since his last visit east, and as would be naturally supposed, time has made many changes in his sight. Mr. Keene was born at Colyer sixty-six years ago and when a young man heeded Horace Greeley's advice and went west, settling in Michigan where he found work as a carpenter. He followed this occupation all his life and did considerable contract work, building up to a great extent the town which he calls home. Many years ago he built himself a substantial residence but the home has been robbed of its maker since the death of his wife, last November. Mr. Keene will remain east for an indefinite time and visit among his several sisters and friends.

U. S. OFFICIALS MAKE INQUIRY

Consul Frost and Attaches Interview Survivors.

DR. FISHER BLAMES LINE

Brother Of Former Secretary Of Interior Says Neither Discipline Nor Precautions Were Up To the Standard.

Queenstown.—Wesley Frost, United States Consul at Cork, is obtaining affidavits concerning all the material facts of the torpedoing of the Cunard liner Lusitania from Miss Jessie Taft Smith, of Braceville, Ohio; Dr. Howard Fisher, of New York, and Robert Rankin, of New York.

These survivors will cable to the State Department at Washington about 300 words each.

Captains Miller and Cassel, attaches of the American Embassy in London, arrived here and conferred with Consul Frost.

No Hope For Missing.

Most of the survivors are leaving Queenstown. There is little hope here that additional survivors will be found.

Representatives of the Pearson family claimed the body of Dr. F. S. Pearson. They also visited the morgues searching for the body of Mrs. Pearson, who is missing.

Marine Superintendent Dodd of the Cunard Line declared that he had little hope that any survivors would turn up at isolated parts along the coast. He believed that the death list would remain about the same as had been estimated.

The only problem now was to identify some of the dead in the morgues. The body of J. C. Brodrick had been falsely tagged in the morgue as that of the purser of the Lusitania. (No J. C. Brodrick appears on the passenger list, although a C. T. Broderick, of Boston, was in the first cabin of the Lusitania.)

Injured survivors of the Lusitania are reported to be progressing. Among the volunteer doctors none has been more busy than Dr. Fisher, who was rescued after being in the water three hours.

Dr. Fisher Treats Injured.

Dr. Fisher now numbers among his patients Lady Mackworth, of Cardiff, who is suffering from the result of being a long time in the water; Lady Allan, of Montreal, who has a broken collar-bone, and Dr. Fisher's sister-in-law, Miss Dorthy Conner, who also is a cousin of Henry L. Stimson, ex-Secretary of War of the United States.

Miss Conor was standing beside Lady Mackworth when they were flung into the water as the ship keeled over. Both women were provided with life belts and were picked up when at the point of exhaustion.

"It is not true that those on board were unconcerned over the possibility of being torpedoed. I took the big liner to save time and also because in case of a floating mine I felt she would have more chance of staying up. But like everybody else aboard I felt sure in case of being torpedoed that we would have ample time to take to the boats.

Discipline Below Standard.

"I do not know what case is being made out for the Cunard people, but I cannot say that either discipline or precautions were up to the standard."

Berlin.—The following official communication was issued here:

"The Cunard liner Lusitania was yesterday torpedoed by a German submarine and sunk.

"The Lusitania was naturally armed with guns, as were recently most of the English mercantile steamers. Moreover, as is well known here, she had large quantities of war material in her cargo.

"Her owners, therefore, knew to what danger the passengers were exposed. They alone bear all the responsibility for what has happened.

"Germany, on her part, left nothing undone to repeatedly warn them. The Imperial Ambassador in Washington went so far as to make a public warning, so as to draw attention to this danger. The English press sneered then at the warning and relied on the protection of the British fleet to safeguard Atlantic traffic."

TAFT DEFERS TO WILSON.

Confident President Will Follow a Wise and Patriotic Course.

Milwaukee.—"The news of the sinking of the Lusitania is most distressing," said former President Taft on his arrival here from Madison. "It presents a situation of the most difficult character, properly awakening great national concern. I do not wish to embarrass the President or the Administration by a discussion of the subject at this stage of the information except to express confidence that the President will follow a wise and patriotic course."

GREAT ATLANTIC LINER SUNK BY THE GERMANS

DRIVER OF SUFFRAGE AUTOMOBILE

Miss Virginia Watrous, daughter of Mrs. Antoinette Funk of the National American Woman Suffrage association, is to drive a big automobile carrying suffrage campaigners through New Jersey this summer. The campaigners will be her mother, Mrs. Medill McCormick, Mrs. Winston Churchill and Mrs. Martha S. Kimball. Another of the party will be Miss Watrous' bull terrier, who rejoices in the name of Votes, and is to be seen in this picture.

Where Religions Flourish.

There is a church for every thousand inhabitants in the large cities of the anthracite region of Pennsylvania, and nearly the same proportion in the rural communities. Scranton, with its 129,867 citizens, has 129 churches, representing 22 different religions. Wilkes-Barre, with its 67,105 citizens, has 66 churches of 14 denominations. In Hazleton, with 25,452 inhabitants, there are 33 churches of nine different denominations. Among the 175,000 mine workers there are Russians, Austrians, Irishmen, Germans, Italians, Welshmen, Englishmen, Hungarian, Scotchmen, Swiss, Canadians, Swedes, Turks, Frenchmen, Greeks, Roumanians, Danes, Norwegians, Dutchmen, Belgians, Finns and a dozen minor races.

SYNOPSIS.

Le Comte de Sabron, captain of French cavalry, takes to his quarters to raise by hand a motherless Irish terrier pup, and names it Pitchoune. He dines with the Marquise d'Esclignac and meets Miss Julia Redmond, American heiress, who sings for him an English ballad that lingers in his memory. Sabron is ordered to Algiers, but is not allowed to take servants or dogs. Miss Redmond offers to take care of the dog during his master's absence, but Pitchoune, homesick for his master, runs away from her. The Marquise plans to marry Julia to the Duc de Tremont. Unknown to Sabron, Pitchoune follows him to Algiers. Dog and master meet and Sabron gets permission from the war minister to keep his dog with him. Julia writes him that Pitchoune has run away from her. He writes Julia of Pitchoune. The Duc de Tremont finds the American heiress capricious.

"My dear Julia," she said to the beautiful girl, looking at her through her lorgnon; "I don't understand you. Every one of your family has married a title. We have not thought that we could do better with our money than build up fortunes already started; than in preserving noble races and noble names. There has never been a divorce in our family. I am a marquise, your cousin is a countess, your aunt is one of the peeresses of England, and as for you, my dear . . ."

Miss Redmond was standing by the piano. She had lifted the cover and was about to sit down to play. She smiled slightly at her aunt, and seemed in the moment to be the older woman.

"There are titles and titles, ma tante: the only question is what kind do you value the most?"

"The highest!" said her aunt without hesitation, "and the Duc de Tremont is undoubtedly one of the most famous partis in Europe."

"He will then find no difficulty in marrying," said the young girl, "and I do not wish to marry a man I do not love."

She sat down at the piano and her hands touched the keys. Her aunt, who was doing some dainty tapestry, whose fingers were creating silken flowers and whose mind was busy with fancies and ambitions very like the work she created, shrugged her shoulders.

"That seems to be," she said keenly, "the only tune you know, Julia."

"It's a pretty song, ma tante."

"I remember that you played and sang it the first night Sabron came to dinner." The girl continued to finger among the chords. "And since then never a day passes that sometime or other you do not play it through"

"It has become a sort of oraison, ma tante."

"Sabron," said the marquise, "is a fine young man, my child, but he has nothing but his officer's pay. Moreover, a soldier's life is a precarious one."

Julia Redmond played the song softly through

The old butler came in with the evening mail and the papers. The Marquise d'Esclignac, with her embroidery scissors, opened Le Temps from Paris and began to read with her usual interest. She approached the little lamp on the table near her, unfolded the paper and looked over at her niece, and after a few moments, said with a slightly softened voice:

"Julia!" Miss Redmond stopped playing. "Julia!" The girl rose from the piano stool and stood with her hand on the instrument.

"My dear Julia!" Madame d'Esclignac spread Le Temps out and put her hand on it. "As I said to you, my child, the life of a soldier is a precarious one."

"Ma tante," breathed Miss Redmond from where she stood. "Tell me what the news is from Africa. I think I know what you mean."

She could not trust herself to walk across the floor, for Julia Redmond in that moment of suspense found the room swimming.

"There has been an engagement," said the marquise gently, for in spite of her ambitions she loved her niece. "There has been an engagement, Julia, at Dirbal." She lifted the newspaper and held it before her face and read:

There has been some hard fighting in the desert, around about Dirbal. The troops commanded by Captain de Sabron were routed by the natives at noon on Thursday They did not rally and were forced to retreat. There was a great loss of life among the natives and several of the regiment were also killed. There has been no late or authenic news from Dirbal, but the last dispatches give the department of war to understand that Sabron himself is among the missing.

The Marquise d'Esclignac slowly put down the paper, and rose quickly. She went to the young girl's side and put her arm around her. Miss Redmond covered her face with her hands:

"Ma tante, ma tante!" she murmured.

"My dear Julia," said the old lady, "there is nothing more uncertain than newspaper reports, especially those that come from the African seat of war. Sit down here, my child."

The two women sat together on the long piano stool. The marquise said:

"I followed the fortunes, my dear, of my husband's cousin through the engagement in Tonkin. I know a little what it was" The girl was immovable. Her aunt felt her rigid by her side. "I told you," she murmured, "that a soldier's life was a precarious one."

Miss Redmond threw away all disguise.

"Ma tante," she said in a hard voice. "I love him! You must have known it and seen it. I love him! He is becoming my life."

As the marquise looked at the girl's face and saw her trembling lips and her wide eyes, she renounced her ambitions for Julia Redmond. She renounced them with a sigh, but she was a woman of the world, and more than that, a true woman. She remained for a moment in silence, holding Julia's hands.

She had followed the campaign of her husband's cousin, a young man with an insignificant title whom she had not married. In this moment she relived again the arrival of the evening papers; the dispatches, her husband's news of his cousin. As she kissed Julia's cheeks a moisture passed over her own eyes, which for many years had shed no tears.

"Courage, my dear," she implored "We will telegraph at once to the minister of war for news."

The girl drew a convulsive breath and turned, and leaning both elbows on the piano keys—perhaps in the very notes whose music in the little song had charmed Sabron—she burst into tears. The marquise rose and passed out of the room to send a man with a dispatch to Tarascon.

CHAPTER XIII.

One Dog's Day.

There must be a real philosophy in all proverbs. "Every dog has his day" is a significant one. It surely was for Pitchoune. He had his day. It was a glorious one, a terrible one, a memorable one, and he played his little part in it. He awoke at the gray dawn, springing like a flash from the foot of Sabron's bed, where he lay asleep, in response to the sound of the reveille, and Sabron sprang up after him.

Pitchoune in a few moments was in the center of real disorder. All he knew was that he followed his master all day long. The dog's knowledge did not comprehend the fact that not only had the native village, of which his master spoke in his letter to Miss Redmond, been destroyed, but that Sabron's regiment itself was menaced by a concerted and concentrated attack from an entire tribe, led by a fanatic as hotminded and as fierce as the Mahdi of Sudanese history.

Pitchoune followed at the heels of his master's horse. No one paid any attention to him. Heaven knows why he was not trampled to death, but he was not. No one trod on him; no horse's hoof hit his little wiry form that managed in the midst of carnage and death to keep itself secure and his hide whole. He smelt the gunpowder, he smelt the smoke, sniffed at it, threw up his pretty head and barked, puffed and panted, yelped and tore about and followed. He was not conscious of anything but that Sabron was in motion; that Sabron, his beloved master, was in action of some kind or other and he, a soldier's dog, was in action, too. He howled at fierce dark faces, when he saw them. He snarled at the bullets that whistled around his ears and, laying his little ears back, he shook his black muzzle in the very grin of death.

Sabron's horse was shot under him, and then Pitchoune saw his master, sprang upon him, and his feelings were not hurt that no attention was paid him, that not even his name was called, and as Sabron struggled on, Pitchoune followed It was his day; he was fighting the natives; he was part of a battle; he was a soldier's dog! Little by little the creatures and things around him grew fewer, the smoke cleared and rolled away, there were a few feet of freedom around him in which he stood and barked; then he was off again close to his master's heels and not too soon. He did not know the blow that struck Sabron, but he saw him fall, and then and there came into his canine heart some knowledge of the importance of his day. He had raced himself weary. Every bone in his little body ached with fatigue.

Sabron lay his length on the bed of a dried-up river, one of those phantom-like channels of a desert stream whose course runs watery only certain times of the year. Sabron, wounded in the abdomen, lay on his side. Pitchoune smelled him from head to foot, addressed himself to his restoration in his own way. He licked his face and hands and ears, sat sentinel at the beloved head where the forehead was covered with sweat and blood. He barked feverishly and to his attentive ears there came no answer whatsoever, either from the wounded man in the bed of the African river or from the silent plains.

Sabron was deserted. He had fallen and not been missed and his regiment, routed by the Arabs, had been driven into retreat. Finally the little dog, who knew by instinct that life remained in his master's body, set himself at work vigorously to awaken a sign of life. He attacked Sabron's shoulder as though it were a prey; he worried him, barked in his ear, struck him lightly with his paw, and finally, awakening to dreadful pain, to fever and to isolation, awakening perhaps to the battle for life, to the attentions of his friend, the spahi opened his eyes.

Sabron's wound was serious, but his body was vigorous, strong and healthy, and his mind more so. There was a film over it just now. He raised himself with great effort, and in a moment realized where he was and that to linger there was a horrible death. On each side of the river rose an inclined bank, not very high and thickly grown with mimosa bush. This meant to him that beyond it and probably within easy reach, there would be shade from the intense and dreadful glare beating down upon him, with death in every ray. He groaned and Pitchoune's voice answered him. Sabron paid no attention to his dog, did not even call his name. His mind, accustomed to quick decisions and to a matter-of-fact consideration of life, instantly took its proper course. He must get out of the river bed or die there, rot there.

What there was before him to do was so stupendous an undertaking that it made him almost unconscious of the pain in his loins. He could not stand, could not thoroughly raise himself; but by great and painful effort, bleeding at every move, he could crawl; he did so, and the sun beat down upon him. Pitchoune walked by his side, whining, talking to him, encouraging him, and the spahi, ashen pale, his bright gray uniform ripped and stained, all alone in the desert, with death above him and death on every hand, crawled, dragged, hitched along out of the river to the bank, cheered, encouraged by his little dog.

For a drop of water he would have given—oh, what had he to give? For a little shade he would have given—about all he had to give had been given to his duty in this engagement which could never bring him glory, or distinction or any renown. The work of a spahi with a native regiment is not a very glorious affair. He was simply an officer who fell doing his daily work.

Pitchoune barked and cried out to him: "Courage!"

"I shall die here at the foot of the mimosa," Sabron thought; and his hands hardly had the courage or strength to grasp the first bushes by which he meant to pull himself up on the bank. The little dog was close to him, leaping, springing near him, and Sabron did not know how tired and thirsty and exhausted his brave little companion was, or that perhaps in that heroic little body there was as much of a soldier's soul as in his own human form.

The sun was so hot that it seemed to sing in the bushes. Its torrid fever struck on his brown, struck on his chest; why did it not kill him? He was not even delirious, and yet the bushes sang dry and crackling. What was their melody? He knew it. Just one melody haunted him always, and now he knew the words: they were a prayer for safety.

Civilization's Peril.

America is closer to the heart of Europe than at any time since England's colonies became independent states. To the most isolated farmhouse it has been known for a half year that we are not remote from the portentous events beyond the sea; that the fate of our brothers over there, in some way which we do not well discern, involves us also. We are, whether we like it or not, full shareholders in the civilization which is imperiled. Our commerce and industry, our prosperity and well-being, our culture and religion, the foundations of our common humanity, and the ideals of our common aspirations, are all at stake.—Edward T. Devine in the Survey.

Child Research Work.

Miss Elizabeth Moore of St. Louis, who is a member of the children's bureau department of the government, has returned to Saginaw, Mich., to continue her investigations in regard to the women of the lumber camps and health of the children. Miss Julia Lathrop, head of the children's bureau, ordered Miss Moore to Indianapolis shortly after the holidays to assist in making preparations for a child welfare exhibition to be given in that city. Miss Moore was there ten days before returning to her regular work

LUSITANIA'S DEATH LIST, 1,256
115 OF THESE WERE AMERICANS

Big Cunard Liner, With 2,067 Men And Women Aboard, Torpedoed Without Warning—Survivors Reach Shore—Some Landed At Queenstown Die In Hospitals.

FIRST TRANSATLANTIC VICTIM.

The Cunard Liner Lusitania was torpedoed and sunk off the coast of Ireland, ten miles south of Kinsale.

The vessel carried 1,253 passengers, of which 188 were American citizens.

Officials of the Cunard Line in London announced that the ship had been torpedoed without any warning.

Reports indicate that the Lusitania sank fifteen minutes after being struck.

It was the Lusitania, whose flying of the American flag last February on her way from Queenstown to Liverpool, in order to protect her against German submarines, that caused considerable astonishment on both sides of the ocean.

Washington is expected to make strong representations to Germany as a result of the torpedoing of the Lusitania without warning.

The Lusitania's cargo was valued at about $750,000 and contained a large quantity of war supplies. Her manifest included 280,000 pounds of brass and copper wire, $66,000 worth of military goods and 5,471 cases of ammunition valued at $200,024, all of which was contraband of war. The ship itself, Cunard officials said, was covered by $5,000,000 war risk insurance.

Washington.—A cable to the State Department from Consul Frost, at Queenstown, places the total survivors of the Lusitania at 645. Probably 1,200 bodies have not been recovered. The persons not listed, the department reports, are "almost to a certainty dead."

The latest estimate of lives lost as a result of the torpedoing of the Cunard liner Lusitania by a German submarine off the Irish coast is 1,256. It is believed that almost all, if not all, the survivors have been brought ashore, and there is little hope of recovering any other passengers alive.

Among the well-known Americans whose bodies have not been recovered, and whose consequently are believed to have perished, are Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Charles Klein, the playwright; Justus Miles Forman and Elbert Hubbard and his wife.

The body of Charles Frohman, of New York, the theatrical producer, already has been recovered and brought ashore at Queenstown. The hospitals of Queenstown are filled with the injured among the survivors and the morgues with the dead recovered from the sea.

Bodies Of Women and Children Brought In.

Of the dead many are women. The stories from Queenstown describe the bringing in of the bodies of a great number of women, many of them still unidentified. The Queenstown docks are the temporary resting places also of the bodies of several children. One dead mother still is clasping in her rigid arms the body of her 3-month-old baby.

When the Lusitania left New York May 1, she had on board 1,901 souls, 1,251 passengers and 650 crew. The passengers were made up of 291 in the first cabin, 599 in the second and 361 in the steerage. The list of survivors shows so far that about 90 first-class and 75 second-class passengers were saved. The first cabin passengers were at lunch when the unheralded German attack sent the liner to the bottom. It is noticeable that comparatively few first-class passengers were saved.

Judging from the recitals of survivors there was comparatively little panic on board the Lusitania when she went down. Nor is there anything to show that the rule of the sea favoring women and children in the work of rescue was violated. Many of the liner's lifeboats were rendered useless by the fact that she listed so sharply that they could not be used.

Did Not Think She Could Sink.

Many of the passengers did not believe the Lusitania would sink as quickly as she did. Consequently they did not join in the rush for the lifeboats, but evidently preferred to trust in their belief that the water-tight compartments of the vessel would keep her afloat until such time as help came out from the Irish shore less than 10 miles away. It is related that some of the passengers even disdained to put on life belts when these were handed to them.

Either two or three torpedoes struck the Lusitania. One report says the first projectile was followed by two others striking in quick succession. Another report has it that two submarines took part in the onslaught, one attacking from the port and the other from the starboard side.

The British Government made the following announcement:

"The statement appearing in some newspapers that the Lusitania was armed is wholly false."

Given No Warning.

The Lusitania was steaming along about 10 miles off Old Head Kinsale, on the last leg of her voyage to Liverpool, when, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, a submarine suddenly appeared, and so far as all reports go, fired two torpedoes without warning at the steamer. One struck her near the bows and the other in the engine-room. The powerful agents of destruction tore through the vessel's side, causing terrific explosions. Almost immediately great volumes of water poured through the openings and the Lusitania listed.

Boats which were already swung out on the davits were dropped overboard and were speedily filled with passengers who had been appalled by the desperate attack. A wireless call for help was sent out and immediately rescue boats of all kinds were sent out both from the neighboring points along the coast and Queenstown.

But within 15 minutes, as one survivor estimated, and certainly within half an hour, the Lusitania had disappeared.

NEWS STARTLES WILSON.

Whether Any American Lives Were Lost, His First Concern—Secretary Bryan Awaits Facts.

Washington.—Destruction of the British liner Lusitania, with the loss of many lives, shocked officials of the United States government and spread profound grief in the national capital.

Although it was not known how many, if any, of those lost were Americans, the view was general that the most serious situation confronted the American government since the outbreak of the war in Europe.

The warning of the United States that Germany would be held to a "strict accountability" for the loss of "American lives," irrespective of whether they were aboard belligerent or neutral vessels when attacked focussed attention on the White House, where President Wilson until late in the night read the dispatches with grave interest. The President made no comment.

Officials said facts and circumstances would have to be obtained by careful investigation during the next few days before any announcement could be made by the American government.

GERMANY GAVE TIMELY WARNING.

Advertisement That Showed They Had Planned This Would Be the Lusitania's Last Vovage.

New York.—Just prior to the sailing of the Lusitania the German Embassy had warned persons against going abroad, because of the dangers from submarines, and the following advertisement was inserted in American newspapers:

NOTICE.

"Travelers intending to embark on the Atlantic voyage are reminded that a state of war exists between Germany and her allies and Great Britain and her allies; that the zone of war includes the waters adjacent to the British Isles; that in accordance with formal notice given by the Imperial German government vessels flying the flag of Great Britain or any of her allies are liable to destruction in those waters, and that travelers sailing in the war zone on ships of Great Britain or her allies do so at their own risk.

(Signed)

"IMPERIAL GERMAN EMBASSY."

The big Cunard greyhound was commanded by Capt. W. T. Turner, of the British Royal Navy reserve, with Capt. J. C. Anderson acting as his staff officer. Both were rated as the best seamen in the transatlantic trade, daring yet cautious.

Captain Turner and other officials of the great liner did not fear any trouble from submarines upon the Lusitania's present trip. They laughed at the German warning and encouraged the passengers, telling them that the express steamer would be met in the Atlantic by British warships and escorted safely into port.

When Captain Turner's attention was called to the German warning, he said:

"I wonder what the Germans will be up to next? It doesn't look as if they had scared many people with their warning, according to the looks of things on the pier and our passenger list."

ARRESTED FOR MURDER.

Three Men Lodged in Jail Accused of the Murder of Henry Confer of Howard.

Richard Langdon and Dobbin McGarvin of Clarence and Irvin Robinson, Jr., of Mount Eagle, were arrested on Friday on suspicion of having some knowledge concerning the death of Henry R. Confer, of Howard, who was killed Monday of last week while walking the narrow gauge railroad track near Orviston. The first supposition on finding the man's body was that he had been struck by the dinky train and killed. Later suspicious circumstances developed which led to the arrest of the three men.

Coroner Dr. John Seibert held an inquest at Howard Friday evening and the jury rendered a verdict that Henry R. Confer came to death by strangulation at the hands of some unknown person or persons.

No time has yet been set for a hearing.

Repealer Passes Senate.

By a vote of more than two to one the bill commonly known as the "repealer," a measure setting aside the full crew law, passed the senate on Monday. The measure previously passed the house, and with a proportionately large vote, and is now before the governor for his signature or veto. Inspired by a campaign letter credited to Governor Brumbaugh, the trainsmen predict that the measure will be vetoed, but at the time this letter was written (if written at all) the sentiment of the people throughout the state had not been expressed in petition, by letter, by telegrams, by the passing of resolutions by various organized bodies, by personal pleas, by editorials in the great msjority of newspapers in cities and country districts, by virtually storming the capitol by representative citizens from every portion of the state in favor of the repeal of the uneconomic and wasteful measure.

No corporation, not even the Pennsylvania Railroad company, nor individuals can afford to pay for service not rendered, and a law that asks it is unjust, and that is why it should be removed from the statute boods.

The trainmen will be in good hands when the state public service commission is authorized to regulate the size of train crews, and the "repealer" provides that the commission shall have that control.

NEWS OF 1881.

Notes Taken From Files of The Centre Reporter of Thirty-four Years Ago.

July 21st—Mr. Shultz, tenant on John Hoffer's farm adjoining Centre Hall, has put out ten acres of tobacco to experiment with and if it proves a success we believe it is Mr. Hoffer's intention to devote a still larger portion of his farm to raising tobacco. Up to this time the tobacco set out under Mr. Shultz's superintendance is remarkably promising.

Carl Peterson, who for many years has had his home with Sheriff Spangler, died after an illness of several weeks, at an advanced age of between 85 and 90 years, and was buried at Centre Hall on Saturday. Mr. Peterson was a German from the Rhine and highly intelligent. He served under the first Napoleon in his campaigns and we believe was at Waterloo.

Rev. A. D. Rowe, late Lutheran Missionary to India, delivered a lecture at Aaronsburg on Sunday morning.

July 28th—The one-half interest in the Centre Hall hotel property, belonged to the estate of Henry Witmer, was purchased by David Meyer, the present landlord, for $2,500. The other half is still owned by Sheriff Spangler.

Of the seven cities of Asia, perhaps Sardis has the most interesting and romantic history, and yet, with all its wealth, its famous rulers, its wise counselors, its victorious armies, it was the greatest failure of them all. The richest man in the world, Croesus, was king of Sardis; the wisest man, Solon, was her guest, and yet, through overconfidence and lack of watchfulness, time and again it was surprised, conquered and all but destroyed, until at last the disintegrating rock and soil from its own citadel, loosened by the winter rains, and hurled down by destructive earthquakes, buried the city 30 feet deep from the sight of man. It became a dead city, and it was buried by the forces of nature.—The Christian Herald.

NEAT TRAVELING COAT

CAN BE DEVELOPED IN A VARIETY OF MATERIAL.

Styles Just Now May Be Said to More Nearly Meet the Requirements of the Wearer Than Any Previously Introduced.

Coats for motoring and traveling more nearly meet every possible requirement demanded of them than have any heretofore introduced. They are roomy throughout, comfortable, smartly tailored and express a chic ensemble that could not be improved upon.

Here, for example, is one that may be developed in club-checked or blue serge, covert cloth, pongee, or even linen crash. The collar can be left open as well as closed by unbuttoning the right overlapping front of the coat and turning it back in a triangular lapel.

The front of the coat shows a broad belt introduced from the sides through oblique eyelets. A double-breasted effect is maintained both in the blouse and skirt portions, which brings the line of closing well over the left side.

The flared upstanding collar is held erect by a band that encircles the base of the neck, then turns downward, following the line of closing of the blouse. It fastens with a row of flat nickel buttons.

The skirt of the coat is gathered beneath the belt, but at the sides and in back the lengths from shoulder to hem are in one piece flaring below the waist.

Note the clever pockets which so consistently repeat the buttoned band arrangement of the collar.

There is a new summer fabric that would be splendid for this model should it be used as a dust coat, and that is khaki-kool, a new khaki-colored raw silk weave particularly recommended for coats and suits.

BUREAU SCARFS IN SUMMER

Should Be Lighter, Both in Material and Color, Than Those Used in Winter.

Even bureau scarfs should be of a more simple character during the hot months. All fussy things, including scarfs, should be carefully packed away with the blankets and (if you have such antiques) feather beds. Strips or lengths of voile make excellent scarfs. These may be plainly hemmed or hemstitched about the edges. It is a pretty idea to introduce into the bureau scarf the dominant color of the bedroom. Supposing this color to be a cool blue, then the color in the scarf may be blue, and perhaps mixed with a little green foliage. Make a colored border about the scarf, either by stenciling or stitching in blue thread. Various designs and stitches can be used for this purpose. If there is not time to embroider the scarf in color it is possible to obtain the voile already stamped with colored flowers that need no retouching, so that the effect is very like stenciling. The curtains might be made to match.

EVENING GOWN

Pink Crepe de Chine. A Flesh Net and Flowered Taffeta Made in Pannier Effect and Trimmed With Sprays of Flowers Adds Novelty to This Beautiful Evening Gown.

NOTES OF THE SEWING ROOM

Proper Way to Cut Out Lining of Blouse—Repairing Glove—When Threading Silk.

When cutting out the lining of a blouse yoke be sure to cut it the same way of the material as the outside, otherwise it will be unsatisfactory and will not fit.

Using a warm iron when cutting out a garment will do away with pins on tissue paper patterns. Lay the paper on the material and press lightly with the warm iron. The pattern clings to the cloth.

Quite the newest way of making a casing to run ribbon through is by making a wide cat stitch or feather stich on the outside of the article to be used and through this run the ribbon. It holds as well as the old-fashioned way.

If a glove splits at the thumb or near a seam a sure and permanent way to repair it is to buttonhole the kid on either side of the split, then sew the buttonholed edges together. The result will be a new, firm seam that will never tear again. When buttonholing be sure to take a good hold of the kid, otherwise the stitches will pull out from the kid.

Always thread silk into a needle by putting the end of the silk that exists before it is unwound from the spool in the eye first. If the silk is put in from the end you break or cut, it untwists more easily than if it is threaded from the other end. Clip all basting to be removed at five or six inch intervals. They can then be pulled out without wrinkling the fabric.

EASY TO MAKE BRIGHT SPOT

Single Cushion, in Gay Colors, Will Do Wonders in Improving Appearance of Room.

If your living room or your bedroom is in need of a bright spot, get to work and make a cushion of bright-colored material. It is surprising how one solitary cushion will change the whole atmosphere of a room. A cushion made of old-rose poplin, denim or silk would just sing with joy and happiness if you would place it amid your surroundings. Through the center of the cushion sew a strip of white poplin on which large old-rose flowers are printed. Around the edge of the cushion sew a strip of narrow old-rose silk fringe. Should you find that old rose will not harmonize with your wall paper or your hangings, select a color that will blend with them—bright green, blue or yellow will have the same cheerful effect as the old rose.

Dressy Sport Suits.

Palm Beach cloth is one of the attractive new fabrics for making up into good-looking sport suits for beach and country club wear. It is a crisp, light worsted weave, which absolutely refuses to crease or wrinkle, and for this reason it is excellent for motor coats, as well as for belted flare-skirted sport suits. A little more dressy is khaki-kool, all silk in weave and one of the most distinguished fabrics of the spring. Even masculine suits for summer wear are being built of this pleasing khaki-kool which is to be had in white and in the various pale tan, cement and putty shades now fashionable.

MUCH DEPENDS ON NEEDLE

Successful Embroiderer Will Make Careful Selection and Have an Abundant Supply.

Very frequently embroiderers have their nerves frazzled when the silk frays while they work with it. Not every person knows that this condition is due to the fact that the eye of the needle is too small for the number of silk that is being used. It is just as big a mistake, however, to select a needle having too large an eye. In such a case the work takes on the appearance of having too few stitches and holes mark the edges of every stitch.

When embroidering a piece of work which requires shading, the sewer will find it very convenient to have a needle for each color used and use them in succession as each color is required in her work. You will never find an experienced embroiderer confining herself to one needle where a number of colors have to be used alternately.

Corsets for the Stout.

There is a new corset for broad-shouldered, stout figures. The manufacturers of it declare it "will prove nothing short of a blessing for the one type of figure for which it is intended." Really it is to be welcomed by many, for it is designed for a broad-shouldered, stout figure, with high, small hips, small bust and with an accumulation of fat below the bust. It is said to be a health producer and to cause unnatural and excessive flesh to disappear without the least discomfort or ill effect.

DISCOVERED!

BRANDED AS FAKE BY COL. ROOSEVELT

Alphaud, French Interviewer, Put in Ananias Club.

QUOTED COLONEL IN TEMPS

Former President Represented As Wishing United States To Join Allies In War—Whole Interview Wrong.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt followed the example of President Woodrow Wilson by repudiating an alleged interview attributed to him by Gabriel Alphaud in the Paris Temps, in which the Colonel was represented as saying that had he been President of the United States at the beginning of the European war he would have protested the German violation of Belgium's neutrality and would have asked the United States to take its place with the Allies.

"The whole interview is a fabrication," Colonel Roosevelt said. "The last phrase particularly is of a kind I never did use and one which I would be incapable of using.

"The Alphaud interview," continued the Colonel, "does contain statements I did make, all of which are to be found in my book and in my war articles.

"I am not responsible for anything in the Temps interview except what is contained in that book and those articles."

INCOME TAX ROLLS IN.

Likelihood Of Bond Issue Is Now Past, Say Treasury Officials.

Washington.—All danger of necessity for a bond issue to forestall a threatened Treasury deficit is believed by Government officials to be past. The first substantial receipts from the income tax are beginning to come in. The net balance in the general fund of the Treasury, which has been falling off at the rate of from $500,000 to $1,000,000 a day since the first of the year, has remained stationary at about $18,000,000 for the past three or four days, and even increased by $100,000 one day this week. Early returns from the income tax come from small taxpayers. The payers of large tax hold off until the last two or three days in order to reap the benefit of their interest. The interest on some income tax payments amounts to as much as $100 a day, according to the Treasury. The large taxpayers, however, pay the bulk of the income tax. There are 101,718 persons who pay an average of $30 a year tax, making a total tax of $3,051,540. There are 44 taxpayers who pay an average of $100,000 a year, or $4,400,000.

AID TO SOUTHERN CHURCHES UP

Methodist Extension Board Discusses Plans.

St. Louis.—An executive session to discuss plans for aiding churches in the Southern States was held here by the Church Extension Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The report of the Rev. W. F. McMurray, corresponding secretary, showed a capital fund in the hands of the board of $671,000, an increase of $110,000 during the last year. The total receipts last year were $395,000. The College of Bishops took part in the deliberations of the board.

FIRED AT POTATO; SHOT BOY.

Woman Sharpshooter Acquitted Of Manslaughter By Jury.

Salem, Mass.—Mrs. Juanita Griffin, who shot and killed Michael F. Garvin, aged 16 years, during a sharpshooting act at a Lynn Theatre in May, 1914, and her husband, Robert W. Griffin, manager of the act, were acquitted of manslaughter charges by a jury here. Mrs. Griffin testified that when she tried to shoot a potato from the Garvin boy's head the lad moved and the bullet penetrated his brain. The Griffins conducted their own defense.

CHINA PREPARING TO DEFEND PEKIN

Expecting Ultimatum From Japanese Government.

COUP D'ETAT IS FEARED

Sending Of Ultimatum Authorized By Elder Statesmen After Hearing Explanation Of Situation From Premier.

Peking.—Military preparations are being made for the defense of Peking. According to Chinese officials, whose statements have been corroborated in other circles, the Government is making no preparations elsewhere than at the capital for defense, considering that the Chinese will be unable to oppose the Japanese should they make an attack.

It is asserted in high quarters that 100,000 troops have been concentrated in the environs of Peking, but with sufficient ammunition for only a brief resistance.

Special police and military precautions have been taken throughout the city, especially around the Winter Palace, where President Yuan Shi Kai resides. The officials declare that they are suspicious that the Japanese may attempt a repetition of the Korean coup d'etat.

Japs Warned To Leave.

The Japanese Legation, it is said, notified the Japanese to prepare to leave Peking, and that many women and children are getting ready to depart. Many of the Japanese men probably will take refuge in the legation quarter if hostilities break out.

The situation is considered awkward for some of the foreign legation, especiallly those whose countries sympathize with the Chinese, but none of them could oppose the entry of the Japanese into Peking.

Telegrams received here from Mukden say that the Japanese bank and postoffice there have suspended business, that the Japanese reservists have been called to the colors and that other civilians are concentrating in the railway zone.

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, the U. S. Minister here, expressed the opinion that the missionaries and other Americans in the interior are in no danger whatever. He says the Chinese Government will preserve order in the regions over which the Chinese hold control.

TORNADO KILLS SIX.

Scores Of Houses In Oklahoma and Texas Blown Down.

Jennings, La.—Six persons, one white man and five negroes, were killed and a score of persons injured in a tornado which struck Mermentau, La. It was said the wind struck the town suddenly from a southwesterly direction and that several buildings were destroyed.

Ardmore, Okla.—Three persons were injured and much property damaged here by a heavy windstorm. It was reported that Wilson, Okla., near here, was hit by a storm which blew down 40 buildings, but that no one was seriously injured there. Winds of almost tornado proportions were reported over a wide section of Southern Oklahoma.

At Ringling, Okla., a church was reported blown down, but no one was seriously injured. In the Petrolia oil fields, near Wichita Falls, Tex., 25 derricks were wrecked and several houses damaged. The ward school here was partly unroofed and several children injured.

SINGLE TILL 71, HE WEDS NURSE.

Relative Of James G. Blaine Bride Of Washingtonian.

Philadelphia.—William E. Barker, 71 years old, of Washington, and Miss Mary Victoria Blaine, 47 years old, a distant relative of the late James G. Blaine, former Secretary of State, were married here. Miss Blaine was Mr. Barker's nurse and they had known one another for about four years.

REPORTS FROM BATTLE FRONTS

German Claims of Notable Victories Denied By Allies.

BRITISH HARD PRESSED

Persistent Attacks By Germans Aided, the British Claim, By Poisonous Fumes Have Forced a Readjustment Of Lines.

London.—The German official report claims victories both over the Russians in Western Galicia and over the British to the east of Ypres, in Flanders. Field Marshal Sir John French, the British commander-in-chief, has admitted that he was compelled to readjust his lines in the region of Ypres, but the French report, far from confirming a German victory in Belgium, states that the German attacks were repulsed, and that the Germans, being taken on the flank by French artillery, suffered very severely.

A late report from the British War Office also says that German attacks were repulsed, although the Germans used asphyxiating gases and did get a footing by the use of these fumes on Hill No. 60, southeast of Ypres, which, since the British captured it recently, has been repeatedly attacked.

There has been fighting all along the rest of the western front, in all of which the Germans claim to have been successful. The French, however, have another story to tell. They insist that their advance continues both along the Yser Canal, in Flanders, and in the Woevre, where battles have been continuous for weeks on end.

Russian Defeat In Western Galicia.

Conflicting reports from the belligerents in the east make it impossible to quite judge of the position there. The Austrians and Germans say that the Russians have been badly beaten in Western Galicia and have commenced to retire from the Western Carpathians, whereas the latest Russian report, while admitting that the Austro-Germans succeded in getting across the Donjec River, declares that they were checked there.

The country around the East Prussian frontier also has been the scene of battles of more or less importance while at the other end of the Russian line, in Eastern Galicia, the Russians are attacking the Austro-Germans, despite their reported defeat or check in the western part of that province.

Athens credits the Allies with further successes in their attacks in the Dardanelles and Smyrna, but the Turks again report the defeat of allied troops who have landed on the Gallipoli Peninsula.

Big Battle Beginning.

While official Petrograd is inclined to treat matters in Galicia with more or less unconcern, private dispatches state that a battle of enormous proportions is beginning.

Indications that the Russian army operating in the Carpathians is inadequately supplied come from Berlin. "Thousands of prisoners wore only a cap as a uniform," says a dispatch. "They were in civilian clothing and complained of being insufficiently fed. These prisoners unite in saying that the Austro-German artillery fire was appalling, especially at Gorlice. There the Russians fought stubbornly and endured a terrible fire four hours, during which time divisions dwindled to regiments, and regiments to companies. All the staff officers of one division were killed or wounded. Several generals also were killed or wounded. Gorlice was set afire by the bombardment and totally destroyed. The Russian southern wing was broken through on a front of 24 miles and the Russians were forced to abandon not only their first line, but villages behind their front which served as quarters for the Russian center."

$10,500,000 EACH DAY.

Debt Of Great Britain Wellnigh Doubled.

London.—In one of the shortest budget speeches on record, he being on his feet a little over an hour, David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, gave the British public further insight into what the war is costing the nation. The expenditure at present, Mr. Lloyd-George said, was £2,100,000 ($10,500,000) daily, and he added that if the war continued for a year Great Britain's bill would be upward of £1,136,434,000 (about $5,682,170,000). The debt of the country, according to Mr. Lloyd-George, already had been almost doubled and stood well over the $5,000,000,000 mark.

10 TRAWLERS BLOWN UP.

Five Others Sunk By German Submarines Since Sunday.

London.—To the nine trawlers, the sinking of which by German submarines was reported Wednesday, another victim was added. A Norwegian steamer landed Thursday the crew of the trawler Sceptre, which was torpedoed 40 miles off Peterhead. This brings the total number of trawler victims of German under-water boats since Sunday up to 15. The submarines seem to be making a determined effort to prevent England from procuring fish in the North Sea.

Pete, the hired man, was known for his prodigious appetite. One morning he had eaten a normal breakfast of oatmeal, buckwheat cakes, toast, fried potatoes, ham, eggs, doughnuts, coffee and the usual trimmings, and gone to a neighbor's to help with extra work. Building Up Her Words.

A certain little Columbus schoolgirl is learning things, both at school and on the street, as a recent happening demonstrates. The knowledge she picked up at school; the phrase regarding the cat she heard either from some older child or from some careless elder.

"Mother, what does f-a-t spell?" she asked the other night, on coming home from school.

"Why, 'fat,' my dear," replied the mother.

"And what does h-e-r spell?" came the second inquiry.

"'Her,'" again vouchsafed the informant.

"Now I knew I was right, and that old cat of a teacher tried to make me believe that those letters spelled father," exclaimed the child with not a little indignation.—Columbus Dispatch.

Self-Betrayed.

A sentry was giving close attention to his post in the neighborhood of a British army camp in England, challenging stragglers late after dark. The following is reported as an incident of his vigil:

"Who goes there?" called the sentry at the sound of approaching footsteps.

"Coldstream guards!" was the response.

"Pass, Coldstream guards!" rejoined the sentry.

"Who goes there?" again challenged the sentry.

"Forty-ninth Highlanders!" returned the unseen pedestrian.

"Pass, Forty-ninth Highlanders!"

"Who goes there?" sounded a third challenge.

"None of your infernal business!" was the husky reply.

"Pass, Canadians!" acquiesced the sentry.—Omaha World-Herald.

FIND OUT

The Kind of Food that will Keep You Well.

The true way is to find out what is best to eat and drink, and then cultivate a taste for those things instead of poisoning ourselves with improper, indigestible food, etc.

A conservative Mass. woman writes: "I have used Grape-Nuts 5 years for the young and for the aged; in sickness and in health; at first following directions carefully, later in a variety of ways as my taste and judgment suggested.

"But its most special, personal benefit has been as a substitute for meat, and served dry with cream when rheumatic troubles made it important for me to change diet.

"Served in this way with the addition of a cup of hot Postum and a little fruit it has been used at my morning meal for six months, during which time my health has much improved, nerves have grown steadier, and a gradual decrease in my excessive weight adds greatly to my comfort."

Name given by Postum Co. Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

"Too bad," replied Mr. Meekton. "Evidently the dog mistook you for me."

Fifty Autos Disabled In Nail-Strewn Streets—Hoverter Gets Five Years In Lebanon Bank Looting—Sold To "Dead" Men; Goes To Jail.

Accused of preying upon the credulity of bereaved persons, William H. Chapin, alias B. F. Brown & Co., alias D. N. Walters, of Harrisburg and Lewistown, pleaded guilty before Judge Witmer in the United States Court at Sunbury to sending parcels of cheap jewelry addressed to dead persons and then receiving from their estates payment when they had never been ordered. The Court told him that he was a hard-hearted man to prey upon the estates of the dead, and then sentenced him to three months in the Lewistown jail.

Unknown persons exploded dynamite on the front porch of the rectory of the Mother of Consolation Church, one of the largest Roman Catholic churches in Mt. Carmel. No one was injured, but the house and and adjoining property occupied by David Rennie, a mine boss, were badly damaged. There are two factions in this church, and the rectors, Rev. M. S. Retka and T. J. Maniecki, recently appealed to the police for protection, fearing violence.

Fifty automobiles were disabled on the streets in Chester, punctured tires causing the trouble. The police are investigating. It has been learned that "hobnails" of peculiar design had been strewn along the streets traversed by automobiles, and the supposition of the police is that the vandalism is the work of parties who are trying to drive the "jitney" cars out of business.

Arthur J. Hoverter, the Lebanon insurance agent, pleaded guilty to complicity in the wrecking of the Schaefferstown National Bank. Judge C. B. Witmer, in the United States Court, sentenced him to five years in the Lebanon jail. A plea by Hoverter's counsel saved him from serving his term in the penitentiary.

F. N. D. Buchman, secretary of the College Y. M. C. A., at the Pennsylvania State College, will spend the summer in Europe ministering to the spiritual needs of the troops in trenches and the injured men in hospital. Mr. Buchman goes to the front, probably with the German army, at the request of Dr. John R. Mott.

A romance that started when they went to school as children, resulted in the wedding of Miss Isabella Shields, of Allentown, and W. H. Dodge, of Rorchester, N. Y., the ceremony being performed in the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Father J. J. Mahon.

Active operations were begun on the first State institution in Union county, when ground was broken near Laurelton for cottage No. 1 of Pennsylvania Village for Feeble Minded Women. Work on this building, which will cost $25,600, will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

With a gash in the head that required fifteen stitches to close, both arms broken and other injuries, Mrs. Benjamin R. Koch, fifty-eight years old, of West Hamburg, is in a critical condition, the result of a fall downstairs while answering a telephone call at her home.

In his semi-annual report, Charles S. Foos, superintendent of the Reading schools, calls attention to the necessity for an addition to the Girls' High School Building; the need of additional funds to maintain the evening schools and the general financial stringency of the school department.

The eighteenth annual commencement of the joint Upper Saucon and Lower Milford High School took place in the Union Church, Center Valley. Thirteen graduates, the largest class in the school's history, were given diplomas by County Superintendent Alvin Rupp.

Her preference for her stocking as a depository for her money, proved costly to Mrs. William Townsend, of Reading, when she lost a roll of $100, when her stocking wore a hole while she was shopping on Penn street.

Anthony Brill, nine years old, is in a critical condition at the Homeopathic Hospital, Reading, the result of a fall from the Reading Railway bridge on South Eighth street to the street below.

Fifteen accidents in which jitneys figured characterized circus day in Harrisburg, but no one was seriously hurt. Three jitneys hit trolley cars, and two crashed into fences. Over 100 jitneys were operated.

RESULT IS MUCH THE SAME

Slight Difference Between the Methods of the Ancient and the Modern Turtles.

A wicked turtle had for years been troublesome to the inhabitants of the marsh in which he dwelt. He bit the legs off frogs, ate fish with relish, and occasionally grabbed hold of a snake and held on until it thundered.

Finally the animals held a court and tried the turtle on the charge of murder. The turtle was there, with his harveyized shell in perfect repair and covered with moss an inch thick. He apparently enjoyed the deliberations of the judicial body, and was observed to smile at various times.

The judgment of the court was that the turtle should be hanged by the neck until he was dead. When this decision was announced there was great cheering, and the court officers prepared to put the sentence into execution at once. They prepared a noose and approached the turtle. That astute tortoise drew his head back inside his shell and chuckled merrily at the inability of the executioners to carry out the sentence of the court.

Moral—In these days turtles bribe grand juries or employ good attorneys.

Couldn't Part.

Louis Halle was a colonel on Governor Yates' staff, and in that capacity accompanied him to Washington to be a part of an inaugural parade. All the colonels had uniforms a-plenty, but it was decided to rely upon the Washington supply of horses instead of taking the mounts along.

The governor sat on his horse awaiting the parade formation, and from time to time an orderly would gallop up with an official communication. On each occasion Colonel Halle was by his side. At last the governor observed:

"Colonel Halle, I see no necessity for your sticking to this orderly in the performance of his duties."

"There isn't any," admitted Halle, "but, you see, our horses are a lifelong team."

The Killjoy.

Senator Lawson of Brooklyn has introduced at Albany a bill to abolish the free lunch.

"The effect of this bill on drinking?" said Senator Lawson the other day.

"Well, it's effect on drinking will be the same as the old wife's.

"'My old wife certainly looks after me good,' said an old wag. 'She even takes off my shoes for me.'

"'That's when you come home from Hogan's saloon, I suppose,' said another wag.

"'No,' said the first one, 'it's when I want to go there.'"

Optimist and Pessimist.

"Do you see that cheerful chap over there just lighting a cigar?"

"Oh, yes."

"Well, he's a six-months man, while the sour-looking individual talking to him is a two-year man."

"What do you mean by those terms?"

"One thinks the war will end in six months and the other thinks it will last at least two years longer."

Had Him Guessing.

Walter Roberts, the theatrical man, is usually ready with a quick answer to any question that is put to him, but once upon a time he was clearly nonplused. A woman had approached the ticket window and said:

"I would very much like to know if the show which is now going on is moral and proper."

Walter cast a scrutinizing glance at his questioner, but that was all.

"Why don't you answer my question, young man?" demanded the lady at the window.

"Because, madam, frankly speaking," said Walter, hesitating; "I'm not a good enough judge of human nature to know which way to answer without losing a patron."—Louisville Times.

The Watts Variation.

Alfred Watts, the young futurist poet, was lunching with his publisher at a Broadway restaurant recently and while waiting for his bill he amused himself by matching quarters with his host. After several dollars had changed hands, the publisher looked through the window at one of those entertaining little Detroitobiles standing at the curb, and said, facetiously:

"I'll match you for that car, Alfred."

Mr. Watts tossed back his much-photographed golden mane, and remarked, with his characteristic drawl

"Aw, don't be a piker! I'll match you for two dollars."

TOO MUCH FOR JUDGE GARY

Youthful Lawyer Made Technical Error in Billiard Contest With Legal Veteran.

Judge Martin, as a young lawyer and on first arrival in Chicago, thought himself fortunate in gaining an introduction to Judge Gary—the Gary who tried the anarchists. The judge took a shine to the young chap and proposed a game of billiards, wherein Martin made a technical error that he remembered for long. Gary played an old man's game, and Martin then as now, was particularly handy with a cue.

Picture a contest of thirty-four points with four balls on a 4½ by 9 table. The judge (barely bending), with a childish bridge and a nerveless stroke, missed his first shot. Martin, in shirtsleeves, crouched over the table like a jockey piloting a winner, and applied himself to rolling up a run. He had counted fifteen or twenty when he turned and saw the judge disappearing through the door and moving with ruffled dignity.

In the War Zone.

"So your uncle has gone to the war, has he?"

"Yes, sir."

"And don't everybody miss him?"

"Why, yes, they have so far. He hasn't been wounded yet."

LOCALS

Miss Anna Ross of Boalsburg spent a few days last week with her friend, Miss Margaret Jacobs.

A concrete walk is being laid to the front of Harry Miller's home, owned by S. E. Weber of Boalsburg.

Mrs. S. A. Boyer of Mifflinburg was the guest of her sister, Mrs. C. F. Emery, from Friday until Monday.

James Lingle, a student as Selinsgrove, spent a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lycurgus Lingle.

Mrs. E L. Gingerich and daughter, Miss B. I. Gingerich, of Linden Hall, favored this office with their presence, Thursday afternoon.

Dr. H. F. Bitner will today (Thursday) leave for Lancaster to attend an annual meeting of the Theological Seminary of the Reformed church of the United States, to which he has been elected as a trustee.

Swengel Smith, son of Register J. Frank Smith, took a prominent part in the Bellefonte high school play "Stronghеart," which was given recently in the opera house at that place.

The annual session of the Woman's Missionary Society of the West Susquehanna Classis of the Reformed church will be held in the Reformed church in Centre Hall, Thursday and Friday of next week.

"It is twenty-one years since we left Penns Valley, but we still enjoy reading the Reporter," writes P. B. Meyer, from Kenbridge, Virginia, in remitting for his subscription. Mr. Meyer is in the lumber business in Virginia.

One of the features for Old Home week for which Bellefonte is striving is to have the Liberty Bell stop at Bellefonte for a short stay on its way across the continent, in July. It's value as a drawing card would be unquestioned.

William T. Griffith of Lock Haven, and F. S. Ulrich of Millheim, have formed a partnership to be known as Griffith & Ulrich and will conduct a 5 and 10-cent store in the corner room of the Gramley block, in Millheim. The new room will be soon ready for occupancy.

Charles C. Beck, the Reporter's correspondent from West Brushvalley, favored this office with a call, Monday. Mr. Beck successfully taught the Beaver Dam school, in Gregg township, last winter, and will likely be returned when the election of teachers occurs.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice and son Clifford, the former's mother, Mrs. Catharine Rice, all of Reedsville, and Mrs. E. B. Thompson of Altoona were an automobile party who on Sunday made a trip to State College. On their return they called at the writer's home.

The student volunteer fire organization at State College last week received a fire-fighting apparatus in the shape of a hose cart and chemical wagon. The tank has a capacity of forty-five gallons and can develop 1000 pounds pressure, making it possible to throw a stream to a height of fifty feet.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Vonada arrived from St. Cloud, Minnesota, on Tuesday and are at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Walker, above town. They have decided not to return to the far west but may make their future home in old "Pennsy" if Mr. Vonada finds a good position in the barber trade, at which he is an adept.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harter spent a week in Altoona where they were guests of the former's grandmother, Mrs. W. W. Royer. The trip served the purpose of a honeymoon trip which was delayed because Mr. Harter was employed as a teacher in Potter township's public schools. They were married last winter.

The Washington excursionists witnessed the after scene of a big freight wreck on the Pennsy on their return home, Sunday evening. The wreck occurred in the afternoon, about fifty miles north of Baltimore. Fifteen freight cars left the track and several, loaded with wheat, went over an embankment and into a creek where they were literally reduced to kindling wood. The track for a distance of a quarter mile was entirely destroyed, rails being twisted and ties torn from the roadbed and ground to pieces. The loss to the railroad company will approximate $50,000. The excursion train was delayed for an hour while a wreck train cleared the track of the debris. No lives were lost.

Good Entertainment by Y. P. B's.

Tusseyville has a Y. P. B.—which stands for Young People's Branch—organization which is a live wire in every sense of the word. Saturday evening they held an entertainment in the Union church which evoked much praise from the large number present. Singing, recitations and dialogues made up the principal part of the program, while Revs. Jones, Foss and Kurtz assisted in making the exercises complete. The object was to stimulate interest in the growth of this worthy cause and the fruits of the effort have already been realized by the addition of new members to both the branch and main organization—the W. C. T. U. A very liberal offering was received. Miss Elizabeth Bitner is president of the Y. P. B.'s and is an efficient head.

Dixon's Health Talks.

For the vast majority of plants sun is an absolute necessity. They cannot grow and thrive without it. It is of almost equal importance to human beings though comparatively few people recognize the fact.

When we walk into a house where the sun streams through the windows and brightens everything, instinctively we say, "what a cheerful place" The stimulating effects of sun-shine are difficult to estimate but they are nevertheless a potent factor in maintaining our physical and mental health.

It has been said that suicides are more prevalent following a period of rainy and depressing weather and figures have been advanced to show that they are more common among people who have rooms with a northern exposure lacking sunlight.

We all know how one's spirits are depressed by a succession of rainy days but we lack a full appreciation of the value of sunlight in our homes.

The germs of tuberculosis for example will not survive for any length of time if exposed to the sun's rays. It is a mistake to so protect our windows with shutters or curtains as to make it impossible to secure the maximum of sunlight. This is especially true in the fall and winter when the days are short, but at all seasons of the year sunlight is invigorating and stimulating and almost as much a necessity as fresh air.

The planting of trees so close to houses that they shut off the sun's rays is a mistake from a health standpoint.

Sun baths are beneficial in stimulating the functions of the skin, sometimes to a degree which enables it to resist minor ailments.

Spraying Demonstrations.

The second week of spraying demonstrations by the representatives of the Bureau of Zoology of the Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, have been announced by State Zoologist H. A. Surface. At these demonstrations the spray material is made that is most useful and economical in preventing damage by the Codling moth, and other insects and diseases, and the first spraying for the pests of the fruit is shown in detail. The demonstrator will be present rain or shine, and will commence his talk and practical demonstration promptly at 1 o'clock on the day mentioned. All persons are invited to attend these meetings. The schedule for Centre county, in which T. C. Foster is demonstrator, is as follows:

Tuesday, May 18th, A. J. Gephart, Millheim.

Wednesday, May 19th, Newton C. Neidigh, State College.

Thursday, May 20th, Miss Elizabeth D. Green, Bellefonte.

WAR COST IS UNBELIEVABLE.

Great Britain's Cost Heaviest, Reaching Ten Million Per Day.

Recently published figures showing the cost of the war thus far to Great Britain are as staggering to the average mind as the other statistics, growing out of this matchless military calamity. These expenditures represent only a small portion of the far-reaching cost involved.

Great Britain is after all only one of the warring nations. She has made extensive loans to her allies, approximating 4,000 million dollars, which makes her present outlay in dollars perhaps larger than any one of her conferees, but withal, the war is costing England about 10 million dollars a day. The first eight months cost her 1535 millions. The estimated cost for another half year is 3950 millions and for a full year 5680 millions, making her total national debt stand now at 5825 millions.

It is virtually impossible for the average mind to grasp such totals, and when to them is added the cost to Germany, Austria, France, Serbia, Russia and Turkey, the inconceivable has long since passed and a conception of the boundaries of limitless space becomes easy by comparison.

Statisticians have determined that the cost of the war will reach 46 billions, a figure that mocks the mind. But should those figures be accurate, they would still represent inadequately the tremendous losses caused by the war. All these figures refer to dollars, material things. The other side of the picture cannot be counted that way. Tears and heartbreaks, widowhood and orphanhood, distress and desolation, insanity and incurable wounds cannot be entered on the ledger's page. The instincts of brotherhood, the principles of peace, the strivings for betterment have been set back beyond the power of appraising their value in dollars and cents. These are some of the costs of war which the budgetmakers cannot include.

Out of all this maze and chaos of the game of Mars must come to Americans the thought that peace in these United States cannot be prized too highly. From it all must spring the patriotic impulse to unite for that consummation. Calmness of mind, poise, as President Wilson says, best assures that result and in all the trying times that burdenbearer has, the sympathy and co-operation of his country must be and is behind him.—Harrisburg Patriot.

The Devastating Forest Fires.

Commissioner of Forestry Robert S. Conklin says: "Five minutes work at a fire at its beginning is worth days of labor put in after the fire has once obtained a great headway." He might have added that it is the conviction of many citizens that a very large majority of the annual or semi-annual fires that sweep over the forest lands of the state are kindled by the carelessness of men who could extinguish the flame in its incipiency if they cared to do so. It is hinted that the forest fire in Pennsylvania is strikingly coincident with the opening of the trout season and that most of the damage wrought is chargeable to the carelessness of the fisherman. An increase in the number of fire wardens sufficient to really cover the state would surely be a matter of great economy. It would be difficult to estimate the value of the property destroyed every year by these fires, almost all of which could be prevented by a little care.

COMPLETE LINE EFFECTIVE SELLING ARGUMENT.

Supplying The Needs of the Buying Public is Important Factor, Says S. C. Brungart, the Local Agent.

The buyer of an automobile today wants in his car, beauty, power, comfort and economy. Yet before he commits himself that he is in the market for an automobile he appropriates, so to speak, a certain sum of money with which to purchase the car. Then he lets it be known through his friends that he wishes to buy, and the next thing he knows, his morning mail contains a large assortment of circulars and folders, each giving a glowing account of their respective products. He looks them all over and decides to investigate the ones that fit his pocket book and his needs, and invariably it is the dealer having one complete line that gets the first and best consideration.

The automobile public have a right to demand that the moderate priced car embody all of the standard features embodied in the higher priced cars.

The Regal Motor Car Company of Detroit, which I represent, have analized the public's needs and are manufacturing three designs of automobiles. The light "Four" at $650 attracts the class of buyer that wants a staunch, high class moderately priced car. The standard "Four" at a little higher price embodies every feature that a man could expect to find in a four cylinder automobile. Besides these two models, they have recently added to their line a De Luxe "Eight" which is the perfection in motor car design and construction.

So I am prepared to furnish almost any priced car desired.

Counties Not to Pay for Primaries.

The senate last week defeated, 17 to 24 the bill providing for the payment by the counties of the expenses of holding primary elections. This bill was introduced by Senator Sproul, of Delaware, and had the approval of the governor. The object of the bill was to save the state an expenditure of $800,000.
